

About will be a content section that is its own page, and a part of the navigation. Headers will be set up, to separate the content of the page out with <h2>s and s. The content being Comic Summary, Character List, About the Author, and Inspiration for the Comic (in that order). Those will be sectioned off, and if I can figure out the javascript, I can try to have each section as an openable/closable tab, to lessen large amounts of text on the page.