

For my Archive content section, I will make this its own page and give it its own place in the navigation. This page will contain organized sections for each chapter. Having chapters working as headers (or maybe as opening tabs/boxes with the comic pages inside of them, if I can figure out the javascript). Each page is labeled by its number – being the link to the comic page, so that helps them keep track of what page they were on before – and if I have enough space, I will put in scaled down sizes of the comic page above the corresponding page number. Once a comic page is selected it will lead to a new web page for that specific page of the comic, where it will have its own reader comment portion at the bottom of the web page, below the comic (the comic page will be an image file).